Ex Governor John C. Brown reached Washington today to look after a similar bill to extend the time for the completion of the Texas-Pacific ten years. The Texas-Pacific is, however, not affected by the action of the Judiciary Committee, as they get their landgrant from Texas, and not from the General Government.

Colonel E. B. Wheelock, of New Orleans, and Mr. Whitney, representing Morgun's railroads of Louisiana, had an animated discussion this morning before the Railroad Committee of the House, both claiming the land-grant for the projected road from New Orleans to Shreveport. Forty-sixth Congress-Second Session

WASHINGTON, March 27, 1880. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Hutchins, of New York, rose to a question of privilege-a question which in volved the dignity of the House. The New York Evening Post had published an article headed "A Cowardly Congress," which, after referring to the action of the gentle-man from Illinois (Fownshend) in committing his bill to the Committee on Revision of Laws, stated that Congress was working in a dishonest and indirect way by adopting the resolution directing the Committee on Ways and Means to report back several tariff bills to the House. The Speaker: The Chair does not think it question of free speech. Mr. Hutchins: I hold a letter from the Clerk of the House. Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, rose to a question of privilege.

Mr. Hutchins (excitedly): I hope the genas to the military necessity of the projected tleman will not interrupt me. I wish he would keep still. He has been on his feet over a thousand times this session, and I intend to be heard. The Speaker (severely): Gent'emen will conform to the rules of the House.

Mr. Burrows made a point of order that the question was not one of privilege. Mr. Hutchins: As the rules are now constituted it is impossible to offer the resoluby a telegram, which stated that his brother, tion to di-charge the committee except by unanimous consent. Speaker: The gentleman has not stated a bridal present." Tom's eyes brightened up as he drew from his coat-pocket an envelope containing an invitation for the Separator to his wedding, which was to take place the next night. Senator Davis, who tells the story iquinitably, acknowledges he was fairly caught, and had right away to buy Tom's dusky bride nine dollars' worth of silver tea-spoons. Moral: It would not desired only to criticise its detects. He did, however, stand opposed to the diplomatic feature of the bid. If this country were to be represented in foreign parts by ministers plenipoteatiary, he would be found among the last men that would seek to abridge or curtail the compensations which they were receiving. His objections reach-ed deeper. He did not believe the country had any interest to be protected or pro-moted by the diplomatic system. There was no earthly use for a minister at any capital of Europe.

Mr. Blackburn continued at some length, giving his objections to the diplomatic system and showing its irefliciency and abuses. He also criticised the consular system, which, he said, needed to be revised, enlarged, and encouraged, and he was willing to take the aggregate amount appropriated by the bill and expend every dollar of it for the extension of that system.

Mr. Blount replied to Mr. Blackburn, and commented on the fact that one member of the Appropriations Committee had set himself up as the critic of the other fourteen members of that committee.

Messrs. Robeson and Orth followed in favor of the bill. Mr. Singleton replied in a five-minutes' speech to some of Mr. Blackburn's criticisms upon the bill.

Mr. McMillan, of Tennessee, moved to strike out the clause appropriating $20,000 for charges d'affairs ad interim and diplomatic officers abroad. Pending a vote the committee rose and the House adjourned.
